AS YOU LIKE IT

We teen-agers are too old to do the things kids do and not old enough to do things adults do, so we do things nobody else does — As We Like It.

Where a bicycle rolls, Mr. Kenney is sure to follow.

K. Mitchell and M. Rooney:
brawn-power pauses for brain-power.

Head mushroom surgeons: R. Madden, J. Aloisi, K. Parsons.

Ajax, the dishwashing liquid used by champions, D. Wallace and Belanger.

Wendi wonders why.

"When things were rotten," North Reading style.

L. Peffers wears a million-dollar smile.

Dave decidedly deals.

Carol Kouns, hard at work.

Early Monday morning.

Cinematics buff, Cindy King, on assignment.

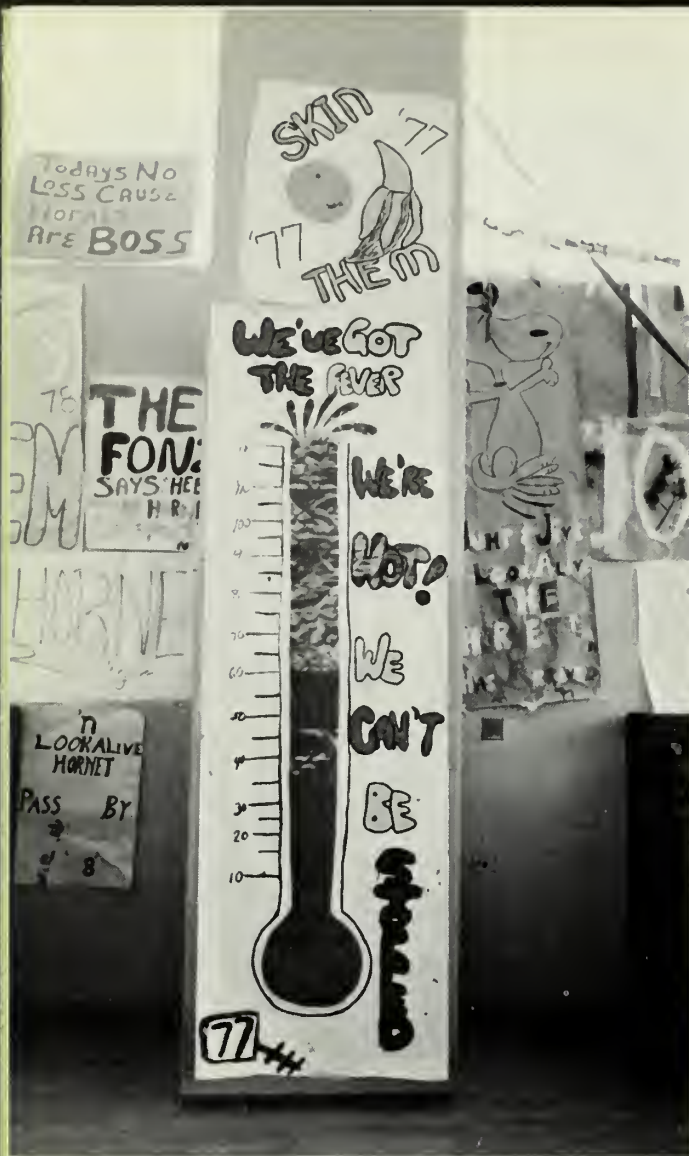

Just Judy

Get yourself together!

North Reading Colonials 1976-style, L. Romeo and D. Wilson, strike a pose at the Putnam House, a Historical Society Restoration.

Temperature's rising in the Junior Class.

Kathy Coleman can't question chemistry.

Gunzie

A meeting of senior minds.

Seniors times four: Clockwise: Jim, Andrea, Lynn, Eileen.

Is this the way it's done?

"There's a bird in my class."

WHO'S WHOM

APPLAUSE

He faces life as it is and how it changes.

Howard Fast

Mr. Landry is a singular individual. His dedication is obvious in many of his endeavors.

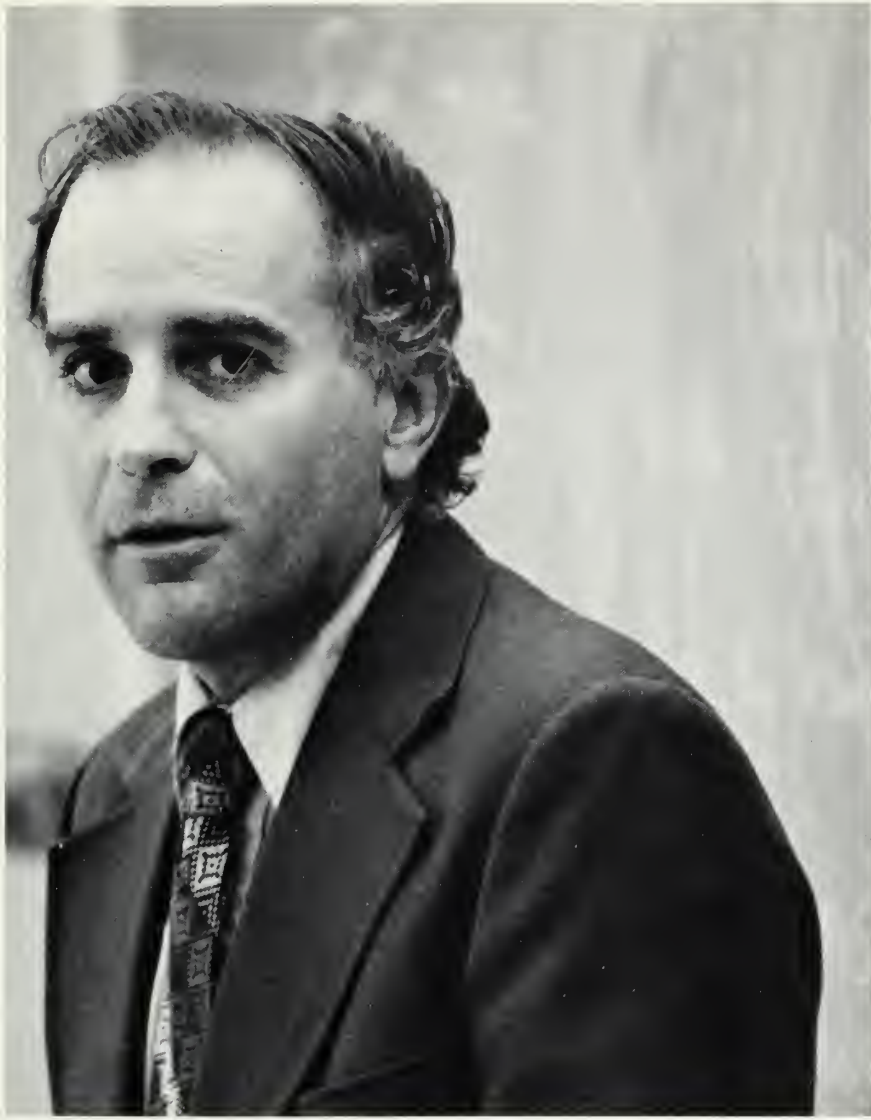

His almost boundless energy profits many. His work with handicapped children is an example of this. Through his work with The Youth for Easter Seal Swim Program, Mr. Landry showed his deep devotion to "his special children."

As a teacher, he works closely with his students and helps them realize the "joys of Japan," "the pros of poetry," and the "B-E-A-U-T-I-F-U-L Bicentennial."

Mr. Landry's unwavering spirit and faith in our class helped unite us as Freshman and stayed with us through the next three years. Through his work with us he has given us the feeling that yesterday is experience, tomorrow is hope, today is getting from one to the other as best we can.

Thanks, Mr. Landry.

"Any questions, comments, or jokes?"

TOP BRASS

Mr. O'Donoghue is in his sixth year as Superintendent of North Reading Schools. Through these years he has witnessed a shifting of attitudes and values in society that are reflected in the school system. The most significant changes have been "(1) increased concern for children with learning disabilities, (2) elimination of sex bias, (3) renewed emphasis on basic skills in reading, language, and mathematics."

Mr. O'Donoghue singles out as one of the enjoyable aspects of his job "the exchange of ideas with many people in the community." He says, "I get a strange sensation when I realize that the children of students I taught at North Reading High School are old enough to be enrolled in our elementary schools."

To young people, Mr. O'Donoghue passes along this advice: "Set a specific goal and work toward it. Even if the goal cannot be fully attained, or if it is attained only to be found wanting, the process used in the search will serve as a model for future decision-making."

Mr. Francis X. O'Donoghue, Superintendent of Schools

Mr. Arthur Kenney, Principal

Watching the success of graduates, and hoping that some of his advice has aided them is one of the more enjoyable aspects of Mr. Barresi's position as Vice-Principal.

Like Mr. Kenney, he has helped bring about many changes at the high school. Changes that he especially prides himself in are the many privileges that students have acquired and the humanism that has developed in the educational process.

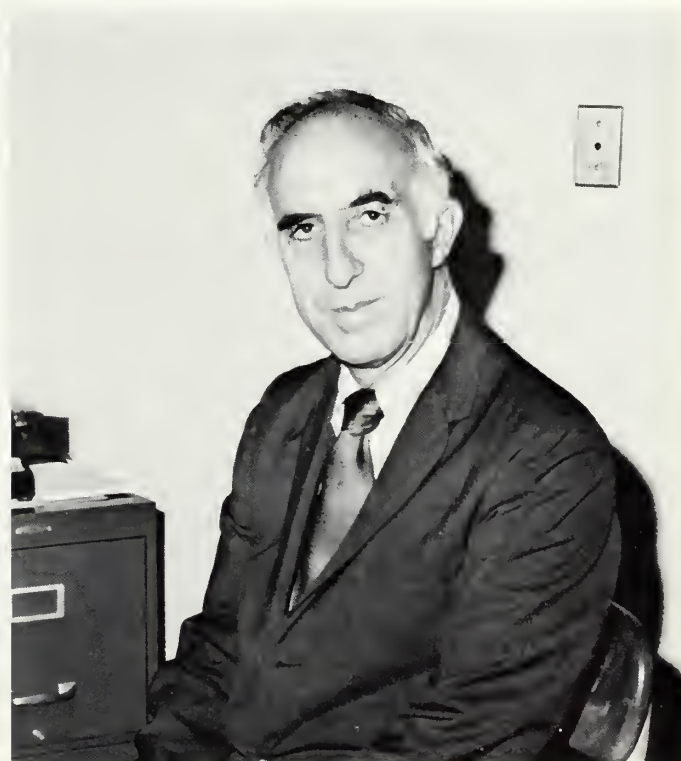

Lighter moments occur to educators and Mr. Barresi remembers this one well: After considerable interrogation a student who was absent (truant) from school insisted that he had had a doctor's appointment. While sitting in the doctor's waiting room trying to have the appointment verified, the student finally admitted that he had not had an appointment.

Mr. Kenney enjoys working with people and with the curriculum, in his words, "being involved."

Change in the high school curriculum has been a special concern to Mr. Kenney. He has been instrumental in bringing about many of these changes. Numerous academic and sport programs have benefited from his influence, such as the Reading Program, Semester Courses, Occupational Education, and an expanded Girl's Athletic Program, among others.

The humanistic approach is the basis of North Reading's philosophy of education. Mr. Kenney strongly believes in this. Educating young people as people marks the high school as a unique force in education.

Mr. Kenney advises young people "to think sensibly about their future, to set reasonable goals, and work to attain those goals — have a sense of humor and care about people."

Mrs. Kelley will always be remembered for her kindness and sensitivity to North Reading students. She gave a helping hand and heart to anyone who asked, even though she was only Secretary of Guidance.

"Tuning in" to students' problems is one of Mrs. Kelly's many talents. A 'round-the-clock friend who could be called upon at any time, Mrs. Kelly was always willing to listen and help if she could.

A sure fan at almost every school function — sports, plays, events — Mrs. Kelly cheered and applauded along with the rest of us. Although she left us for a new home in Ohio, a part of her remains with us.

It has been said that there are two ways to spread light — to be the candle, or the mirror that reflects it. Some people can be the candle, some the mirror. Some are gifted enough to be both.

Mrs. Kelly has that gift. For this, we will remember her always.

Skip Kelley

Agatha Eisenhaure

Mrs. Eisenhaure has been the librarian at North Reading High School since its opening in 1957. During that time, she has changed the library's atmosphere in many ways. She worked to have it enlarged, to acquire more books, and added a colorful touch with her many plants.

After graduating from Weymouth High School and Radcliffe College, Mrs. Eisenhaure taught English at Arecibo High School in Puerto Rico and then at Batchelder School in North Reading.

As she retires, Mrs. Eisenhaure will be remembered for her almost two decades of service and devotion she gave to North Reading High School. We hope she will remember us fondly as we will her.

THANKSGIVING WEEK

Seniors are Number One!

Thanksgiving Week was long in coming but when it came, it came in a flurry. An early snow blanketed North Reading, but failed to muffle the spirit. The Class of '76 led the Spirit of '75 in the usual festivities of sign painting and decorating and somehow the Pioneer bell mysteriously turned its perennial green and gold.

Before the big day, a high spirited rally sent a clear message to Coach Wescott and the Hornets that a win was possible despite the season record. Even a giant Whit offered his canded opinion that "A Hornet victory is no myth." The Young Americans '76 led the school, firing up the fuel for victory in the annual cheering contest.

The Junior Green Machine and a swarm of Hornets anticipate tomorrow's game.

Whit's Words to the Wise: A Hornet victory is no myth.

Morning arrived in a sopping rain and "Canceled" was the word sent out. But the Saturday after dawned clear and bright and the underdog Hornets charged onto the field before a capacity crowd. Spirit was the right ingredient as the scrappy Hornets out-played and out-hustled a stunned Lynnfield eleven in the first half as the opponents were able to muster only one TD.

In the second half, the Pioneers came bouncing back and led 16-0. Undaunted, the Green Machine under Jim Demetri's command, broke through the Pioneer front wall. The Hornets gained two TD's, but the clock won out — Score: 16-12 . . . Maybe next year?

Sue Fitzmeyer

from the cracked window
a ray of sunlight floats
like a small staircase
to the outside world
for here in the attic
time has stopped.
memories linger in each corner
emotions are hidden deep under blankets of dust
and only good things exist.
Great Grandmother's wedding dress with it's trails of cobwebby lace, Tommy's first baseball glove
and Dad's old rocking horse.
a warmth of life
surrounds me
preserved by the magic of the room
I shiver as I close the door hoping never to really close it on my own memories.

mechanical time,
ticked away by clocks
wound every morning
or once a month,
programs our live
to rush
or sit in rooms for hours, man-made time will continue as long as man
makes it.

David Roberts

Looking into the lake,
I saw a stranger.
A sad face being rippled
by the wind.
Uncertain, unsure, yet constant.
I stood, staring into the nothingness
that was my image.
It stared back at me,
full of terror and fright.
Uncertain, unsure, yet constant.
Then darkness came,
casting a shadow upon that
stranger, and when it had gone,
I was left . . .
Uncertain, unsure, yet constant.

Lorraine Anderson

Nancy Alexander

I sat beneath a tree
thinking of the reason for life.

Every thought eventually ended the same: death.

I guess that is why
the instinct to live is so strong.
